His Indictment and That of Coughlin and Woodruff Had Been Expected

witness Who Saw Him Pay Money to the Cottage Renter.

Starkey Accused of Furnishing the Faked Toronto Interviews.

Further Ideas Concerning the Murderous Conspiracy Against the Doctor.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.I CHICAGO, May 20.-The Cronin case is practically at a standstill to-day, at least so far as any publicly active efforts on the part of the authorities are concerned, though, of course, the work of following up various clues that the police have in their possession goes bravely on.

The indictment late yesterday afternoon of Ice-Dealer Bullivan, Detective Coughlin and Woodruff, the man who has been in jail two seeks on suspicion of knowing something about the trunk, the discovery of which first put the police on the right track in the Cronin case, was expected. The only evidence presented to the jury that had not previously been given in these despatches was the positive statement by old man Carlson and his wife that, after the cottage in which Cronin was killed had been rented by the mysterious strangers, those men went directly to Ice-Dealer Sullivan's house, not more than three hundred feet away, presumably for the purpose of having away, preventions of the purpose of having a consultation with the proprietor.

On another occasion the men not only went to Sullivan, but the Carlsons saw Sullivan meet them at the door of his house, and after some conversation between the four, Sullivan drew from his pocket a roll of bills after some conversation between the four, Sullivan drew from his pocket a roll of bills and handed one of the visitors some money. The man who took it was the one who had just paid the Carlsons the second month's rent for the cottage.

Heretofore it has not been supposed that the Carlsons knew anything that would directly implicate Sullivan as being acquainted with the men who hired the cottage, and as he had denied all knowledge of them, this testimony only adds another to the long list of lies that he has already been convicted of telling: and, so far as the present status of the case goes, Mr. Sullivan is in the mire deeper than any of the three men against whom indictments have been returned, though Detective Coughin is badly enough off, his explanations of how he came to guarantee the man who hired the horse and buggy by means of which Cronin was taken from his office to the Carlson cottage having been shown to be lies.

There was no division of sentiment in the Grand Jury room as to the returning of the indictments for murder, and it is a fact worthy of note that the foreman of the jury is M. C. Hickey, a former Superintendent of Police and more or less identified with

M. C. Hickey, a former Superintendent of Police and more or less identified with Irish affairs in general.

With the indictment of these men the war may be said to have begun in earnest, as from now on the defense will be obliged to show its hand; and when this is done it will not be difficult to make a good guess as to where the money for the defense comes from. The prosecution will have no lack of funds, as in addition to the usual means employed mand a sum of money amounting already to $50,000 that has been quietly subscribed by Irishmen who were friends of Cronin and others of the nationality who are opposed to the slaughter-house method evidently brought into play in this case.

The Tribune has been engaged in a hunt upon the man Starkey's connection with the case, and announces this morning that:

case, and announces this morning that:

The proof is conclusive that Starkey supplied Charles Long, the Toronto reporter, with a cue and materials for the latter's reports of Cronin's presence in Canada and interviews with him. For months before the murder Starkey was in communication with the acknowledged enemies of Dr. Cronin and has been since.

Starkey left Toronto Sunday, May 5, the day after Cronin's disappearance, without leaving word with any one, unless in secret, as to his destination. He took a train as 12,20 p. m. on the Great Western division of the Grand Trunk, which makes connection at Hamilton with New York, Detroit or the lake steamers. He reappeared Friday, May 10, the day on which Long's despatch to the effect that Cronin was in Toronto was sent out.

After remaining over Saturday, when the second and detailed interview was fixed up, he disappeared again.

After remaining account of the finding of Cronin's second and detailed interview was nice up, and cleap and control of the day following the finding of Cronin's body cipher telegrams passed between Starkey, at 135 Fourth avenue. New York, and D. R. Mason, his business agent in Toronto, an exile in Canada from the Warehouse Receipt law of Louisville, Ky. On Saturday, the third day, Starkey's wife received a telegran that he was on his way home.

WAS THERE A SECRET TRIAL?

BELIEF IN CHICAGO THAT DR. CRONIN WAS CONDEMNED TO DEATH.

Although it has been vigorously denied by all the leading members of the Order, the charge that the Clan-na-Gael Society as an organization is directly responsible for the murder of Dr. Cronin is being reiterated with so much persistence that it is reported that the police of Chicago are shadowing all the prominent members of the Order in that

On the other hand it is not denied that the reason for seeking the "removal" of Dr. Cronin was the fact that he possessed knowledge and proof of the villainy of those who professed to be friends of the Irish cause but who had betrayed its interests, and whom the exposures made by Dr. Cronin and his followers would eventually ruiu.

DID THE ORDER SUPPORT IT? The only question now is whether the band are only question now is whether the band of conspirators which plotted and decided upon the assassination of Dr. Cronin was supported by the Order in its nurderous work, or whether, as most of the prominent Irishmen in the city believe, the nurder was simply the work of a few individuals who, although they were members of the Society, did not receive its ametion.

VERY GRAVE CHARGES. It is asserted very positively in Chicago Commissioner Henry D. Purroy sailed for that the Chan-us-Gael had a great deal more to do with the crime than the public now ship City of Rome.

imagines, and that it was actually at its instance that Dr. Cronin was murdered.

The claim is made that a committee was regularly appointed to investigate the charge that Dr. Cronin was a British spy, and although the Doctor was never summoned to appear before this self-constituted judicial body the evidence against him was produced in the regular way and upon a secret ballot he was condemned to death. His death warrant was signed, it is said, with the seal of the Society, which being a revolutionary body made such laws and executed such penalties as it saw fit in any emergency.

The men who are instrumental in having this farcical form of a trial carried out, it is said, were the leaders of the Sullivan faction, who formed the "triangle," which has been so often alluded to sluce it was suspected that the Clan-na-Gael was mixed up in the murder.

THE PROOF AGAINST CRONIN UNENOWN. THE PROOF AGAINST CRONIN UNKNOWN.
What proof they had against Cronin is not known, but it was sufficient to give some color of reason for the proceedings, which, it is said, were carried on secretly in the order itself, and were only known to the friends of the Sullivan faction in Chicago.

The job was a desperate one, and only a few were let into it, but these were sufficient to secure the sanction of the Society to the few were let into it, but these were sufficient to secure the sanction of the Society to the act, which was carried out by men chosen from outside of Chicago, and bound to secrecy by the iron-clad oath of the order.

In this way, it is said, the real motives for putting Cronin out of the way, the personal spite against him and the dauger of exposure that threatened the leaders of the Order so long as he remained slive, were screened by making it appear that it was really at the instance of the Society that he was removed and for political reasons alone.

TWELVE SAID TO HAVE HEED IN THE PLOT

TWELVE SAID TO HAVE BEEN IN THE PLOT. It is charged now that there were at least twelve of the Chicago Clan-ua-Gaels in the plot, and that its details were arranged with the most careful elaboration.

The intention was to completely destroy all

The intention was to completely destroy all trace of the crime that no evidence of it could never by any possibility be discovered.

Even the place of burial of the body was to be known only to one or two, and when once placed in its final resting place it would never have been disturbed. It would simply have been a case of mysterious disappearance, and after the first suspicions had blown over, nothing more would have been heard about it.

OTHERS DOOMED, TOO.

After Dr. Cronin had thus been successfully disposed of the Secret Committee of the Clan-na. Gael, it is said, proposed to take up each of his objectionable associates in the same way, and thus gradually remove all opposition to the authority of the leaders, and put and end to the bitter fight which Cronin and Devoy had lead against them for so long a time past.

It was owing to the bungling of some of the accomplices in the plot that the evidences of Cronin's death came out by the discovery of his body in the catch-basin. Why it was thrown in there instead of being taken to the intended burial place is not known, but it is chicago policeman on the scene of the murder had much to do with the change of plan and led to the hustling off of the body and the dumping of it into the first convenient place that offered.

WILL THE FULL PLOT BE CARRIED OUT? Whether the same clique of conspirators will attempt to carry out the plot against the others, now that their crime has come to light, remains to be seen. If they are all Chicago men, as it is alleged, they cannot do much while under the surveillance of the po-among the number.

It is thought that possibly the same men who butchered Dr. Cronin have had their instructions regarding the other proscribed men, and that the present watch upon the leaders of the organization will not prevent them from attempting to carry out their plans. olans.

It is reported that there are several to whom Dr. Cronin communicated his secret knowledge of the villainy of the leaders of the Society not long before his death, and these persons are now a greater menace to the assassins than ever Cronin was before. He knew that than ever Cromin was before. He knew that there were desperate men against him and expected to meet with violence. He thought, however, that he would be attacked at night in the street and did not for a moment suspect that he would be entrapped by such a scheme as they laid for him.

It is the general opinion here among influential Irishmen, who still claim that the Clanna-Gael, as an organization, is not responsible for the nurder, although its secret machinery may have been used for the purpose, that if Dr. Cromin's body had not been discovered, the conspirators would have been able to go on with their work of assassination without interruption or fear of detection.

Inspector Byrnes says he will lay the facts before the Police Commissioners, produce the proofs of Golden's age, and he believes that on Friday the Commissioners will undoubtedly restore him to active duty.

Mistakes of this nature have occurred before and in each instance they have been remedied. Every vacancy created by retirement, resignation or dismissal means a vacancy on the active force and the Commissioners have so many more places for permissioners have so many more places for per-

Before the examination held in December, 1887, for the classified service in the Custom-House, Mr. Berwin, either Augustus or Michael—I think the former, but cannot say for certain until I see him—came up to the County Democracy Headquarters, corner of Eighth avenue and Twenty-first street, in the Thirteenth Assembly District, and gave me the questions in a little leather account book.

This was the evening before the examination.

I was captain of an election district and intimately connected with the organization, and I supposed that this was why I got the questions.

I had talked over the examination several times with Berwin, and he had given me to understand that he would get me the papers: Mr. Beattle had told me that he would appoint me as soon as I got a decent standing in the examination.

Inspector Berwin, you know Jacob Ramsay vacancy on the active force and the Com-missioners have so many more places for per-sonal and political friends, but from present appearances no one will fill Golden's shoes for a year at least. Golden looks like a well-to-do banker, and is a man of unusual intelligence. As far back as 1859 he was detailed as detective in the Night Precipes and has been at Police Headquarters twenty-five years.

Merely a few of Golden's most noted achievements make a record which any man Inspector Berwin, you know Jacob Ramsay, jr., do you not?" asked Mr. Roosevelt.
"Yes, sir," responded Berwin, and then he testified "on his honor," that Ramsay bad been captain of a district in the County might be proud of.

In May, 1860, Golden convicted eleven porters in H. B. Claffin & Co.'s dry.goods store for conspiring to swindle the firm out of $15,000. Five months later he arrested Frederick Schacht for the murder of Thomas Democracy organization of the Thirteenth Assembly District, but was not now.

Golden spent three years to collect evidence to justify him in arresting Peter and Mary Hefferman, expert shoplifters, who had accumulated $250,000. The wife pleaded coverture, and was discharged, and Hefferman, after spending $15,000, went to prison.

In 1864 Golden captured George F. Howe, the accomplice of Smith and Stevenson, the bogus bonded warehouse keepers, who borrowed $280,000 on sourfous receipts. "Not that I remember."
"Did you have copies of the questions?"
"I did have copies of the questions put to me in my own examination in August, 1886, which I had copied in order to ascertain in advance of the report of the Examiners whether I had answered them right or wrong," replied Mr. Bernin in a straightforward manuer. forward manner.
Then he denied that he had ever had a rowed $280,000 on spurfous receipts.

Golden's great piece of detective work was in 1878, when he arrested Charles R. Beckwith, Thomas R. Lewis and Charles H. Ketchum, who by conspiracy, forgery, embezziement and falsification of accounts stole $206,000 from B. T. Babbitt, the soap manufacturer, and Elien E. Peck was taken into custody also. Lewis was followed to London by Golden and arrested. He disgorged $30,000 and Ketchum gave up $15,000.

Golden's next work was the arrest in 1879 of J. R. Robinson, who had secured $287,000 by forgery in Pennsylvania.
